

If your student will be taking the SAT again, please remind them that the site below is very useful in not only preparing for the writing portion of the test, but the reading and math portions also! They can reach the “My College Quickstart” by visiting the collegeboard.com website and submitting their userid and password to access. This site is student-specific in that the site's help is based on the individual student's previous test results!

SAT Essay Practice in My College QuickStart™

All students who take the PSAT/NMSQT receive free access to My College QuickStart™, a personalized college and career planning kit, to help them practice for the SAT and plan for college.

For high school students, My SAT Study Plan™ in My College

QuickStart contains customized SAT preparation advice based on their performance on the PSAT/NMSQT, testtaking strategies, an official SAT practice test, additional writing practice for the SAT essay and more.

They can use My SAT Study Plan to:

- learn strategies for success in writing the SAT essay
- view essays written by actual SAT takers and learn why each essay received the score it did
- write another essay using the additional practice SAT essay prompt to get even more writing practice

Encourage your students to take advantage of all the college planning resources in My College QuickStart. To learn more, visit www.collegeboard.com/quickstart.

4. Another SAT webpage that is very useful, if your child is motivated to stick w/ a plan to improve their scores, is <http://www.collegeboard.com/testing/sat/skillsmap/overview.html>. Your student may view valuable info in each of the 3 areas of the SAT and use his/her particular score to view specific explanations and examples.
